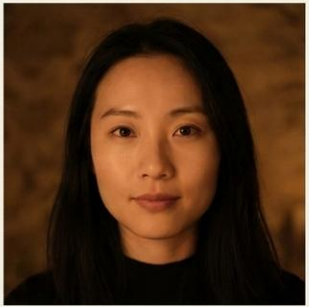
THREE WHO COME

ÉLÉONORE 56, Bordeaux — wine journalist

I've reviewed the First Growths my whole career. I come here to drink anonymous Saint-Émilions with strangers and remember why I started.

HUGO 34, Paris — architect

I take the LGV down on Thursdays, walk the quais, land in the cave by 20h, on the train back by midnight.



MEI-LING 29, Shanghai — luxury retail buyer

I've tasted in Burgundy, Tuscany, Napa. Nowhere feels this close to the stone.

HOW THEY FIND US

INSTAGRAM

decanter arcs, candle-niches, stone close-ups · never staff portraits, never first-growth bottle labels.

BORDEAUX CONCIERGES

quiet partnerships with five hotels in Chartrons & quais · handwritten cards left at reception.

WORD OF MOUTH

nine seats a night · each guest receives two personal cards to hand on.

LA REVUE DU VIN DE FRANCE

one long annual editorial interview · no paid placement.

WHAT COULD GO WRONG

CAVE HUMIDITY	limestone walls breathe · risk of mould on wine labels · install passive humidity-regulated vent + weekly wipedown · dedicated journal of readings.
NINE SEATS ECONOMICS	small room means no margin for empty nights · reservation-only · 48h cancellation · waitlist of 40 standing by · pre-paid deposit for Fri/Sat.
WINE COST INFLATION	Bordeaux prices volatile · maintain 12-week moving cellar · rotate chateaux quarterly · amphora flight hedges against First-Growth drift.

WHY NOW

Bordeaux has 8,000 châteaux.
Most tourists drink the same six names.
Nine seats a night,
four flights, forty rotating growers —
we pour the rest of Bordeaux,
one hour-breathed glass at a time.
