HIG HUB

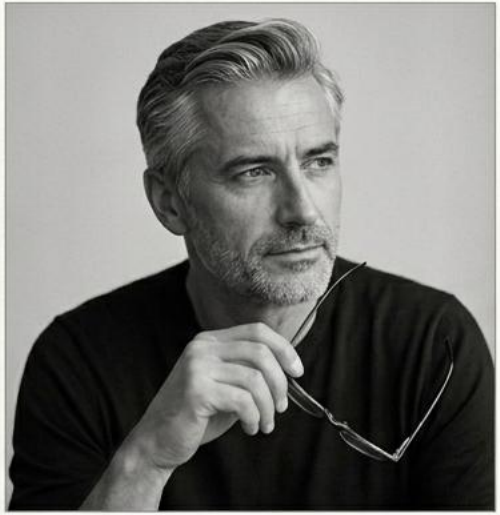
Kasia · 34 · Mokotów

she wants a hygienist who remembers her name.



Tomasz · 52 · Żoliborz

after decades of dread, the tea here matters as much as the scaler.

Ania · 28 · Praga

coming twice a year feels like a small ritual, not a chore.

Instagram

quiet, close-up, object-first

- Stories: a bamboo brush on linen.
- Reels: 30 seconds of ultrasonic water, no face, no face, no loud music.

Word of mouth

the room does the talking

- Every new guest leaves with two tea-branded gift cards for friends.

Neighbourhood

handwritten and real

- Hand-delivered cards to Śródmieście cafés: free check-up for their baristas.

Google / local

clear, never shouty

- A short paragraph, three photographs, opening hours.
- No superlatives.

Single hygienist absence

Single hygienist absence

A named locum in Mokotów on a 48-hour recall; we rebook rather than deliver a lower standard.

Seasonal dip (Jul-Aug)

Summer package for expats, dentist-day at a nearby co-working: visibility when Warsaw empties out.

We keep the room small, the service warm, the follow-ups personal — what they can't copy in a year.

Half of Warsaw still skips the hygienist.
Not from neglect — from memory.
Bright lights, rough hands, that smell.

HIG HUB is a 14 m^2 answer to all three.
A room that looks like a living room.
A hygienist who remembers your name.
Linden tea at the door, mint-cool rinse
at the sink. One visit every six months.
A small ritual, not a chore.

The city is ready for quieter dentistry.
We're just the first to say it out loud.
