Channels — how students find PARLA.

01

SEASONAL TOURIST SWINGS

Rome visitors peak March–October, slow December–February.

Mitigation: lean into 4-week Foundations for expats and local long-term students in low season; offer December 'romanticismo' intensive.

02

TEACHER ATTRITION

One lead teacher is a single point of failure.

Mitigation: always maintain a second native Roman teacher trained on PARLA curriculum, plus a pool of 3 private 1-on-1 freelancers.

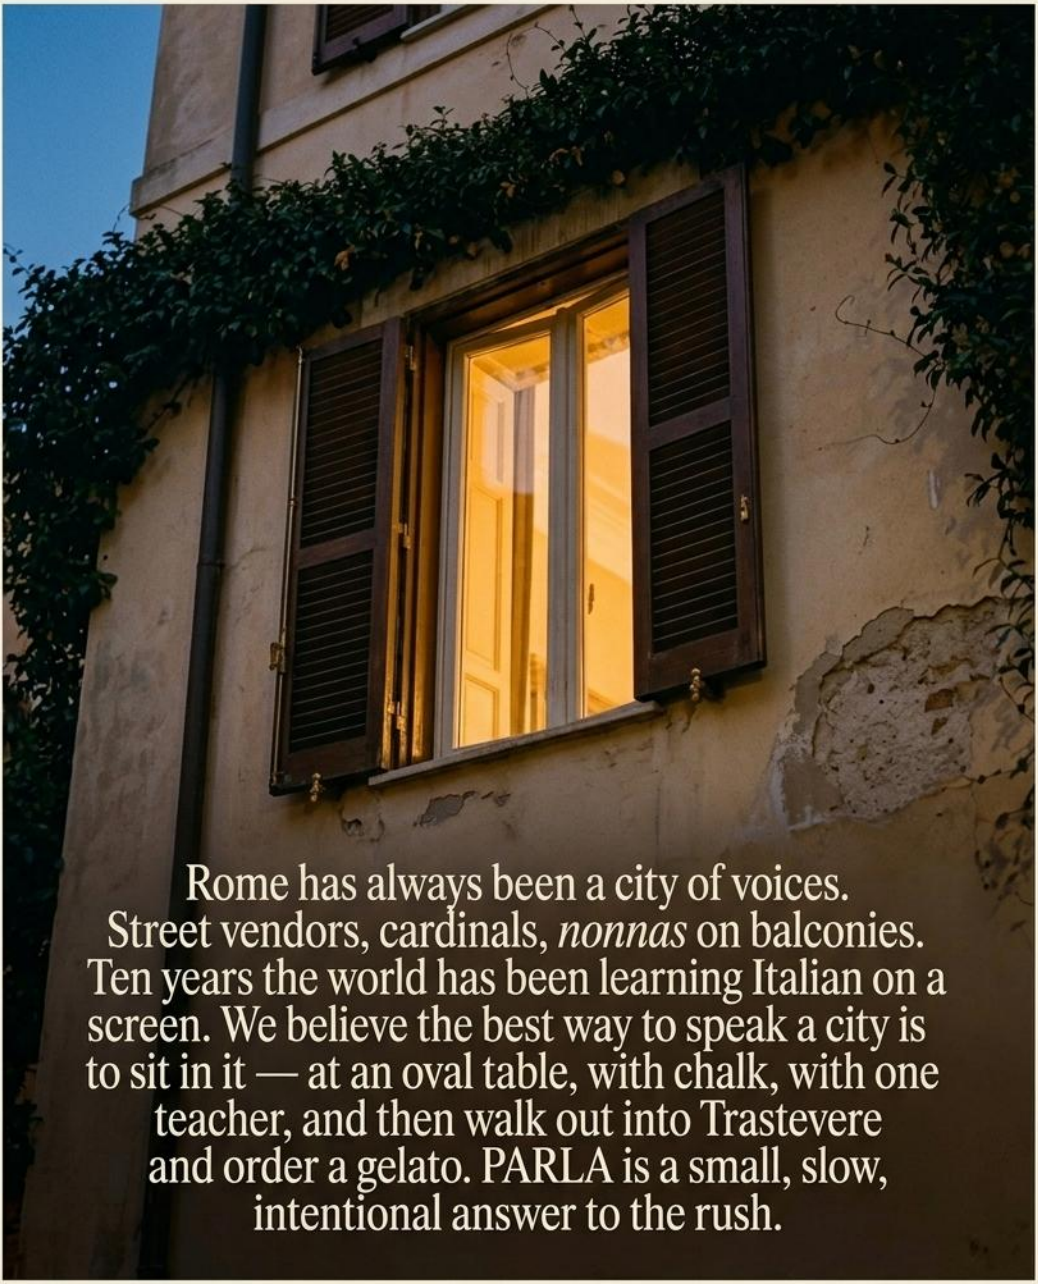
03

PALAZZO LANDLORD

Historic palazzo = historic landlord quirks.

Mitigation: 5-year lease with 2-year renewal option, annual rent cap, written permission for chalkboard installation and signage.

Risks — and what mitigates them.



Rome has always been a city of voices. Street vendors, cardinals, nonnas on balconies. Ten years the world has been learning Italian on a screen. We believe the best way to speak a city is to sit in it — at an oval table, with chalk, with one teacher, and then walk out into Trastevere and order a gelato. PARLA is a small, slow, intentional answer to the rush.

Why now — Rome is ready.
