ANDERS

38 · København

the only pair of hands

Trained at the Royal Danish Academy under Henrik Saxgren. Went to NYC to work at Arion Press, came home to open this. Types are sorted by foundry, not alphabet. He can tell Akzidenz from Helvetica at twenty metres.

solo typographer · 5 days/week · Thursdays off for new type acquisition

MADS · 41 · Frederiksberg · architect

“My firm ordered a stationery run from Anders six years ago. Our clients keep asking where we got them. That is the only marketing we do.”

CLARA · 29 · Vesterbro · illustrator

“My riso edition sells out in 48 hours. He prints them like he cares more than I do.”

BJÖRK · 34 · Reykjavík · poet

“I fly to Copenhagen once a year to have my new chapbook pressed here. Nowhere else is possible.”

INSTAGRAM

Weekly proof pull posted Sunday evening. Never the finished piece. Always the messy first impression.

NEWSLETTER

Monthly. New typeface acquisitions. One piece of theory. No discounts.

WORKSHOPS

Eight half-day sessions a year. Booked through Royal Academy. Three seats each.

COMMISSION FLOW

Email Anders a brief.

He responds in two sentences. Deposit. Two weeks to proof.

RISK: Digital-first designers see letterpress as costly novelty.

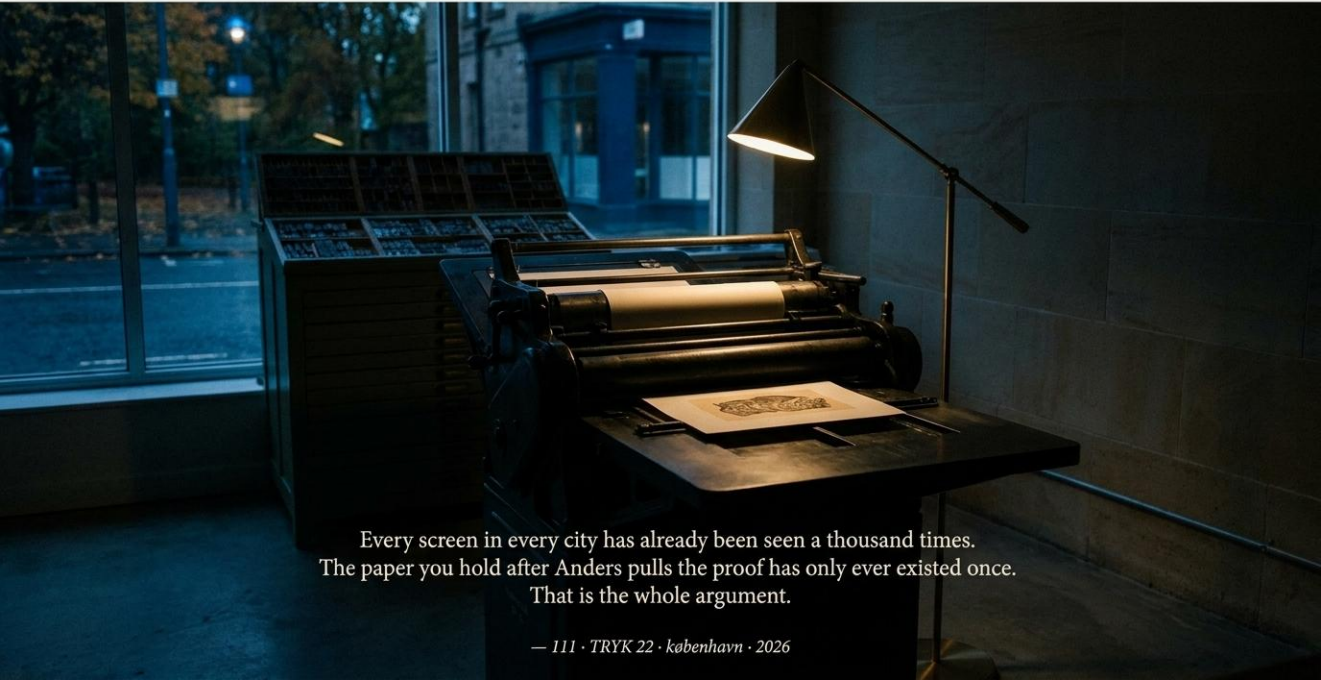
RESPONSE: Price as heirloom, not novelty. Full-run wedding suites priced €680+ target clients who already value handmade.

RISK: Vandercook press breakdown — single point of failure, rare parts.

RESPONSE: Annual service contract with Briar Press network. Backup via 4-hour ride to Malmö letterpress collective.

RISK: Rising paper costs (Hahnemühle import from Germany).

RESPONSE: 6-month paper forward-buys in September each year. Local Danish handmade paper mill negotiated as secondary.



Every screen in every city has already been seen a thousand times.
The paper you hold after Anders pulls the proof has only ever existed once.
That is the whole argument.
